

In Our Schools

Creating a Campus for the Twenty-First Century

(September 13, 2009)

This special In Our Schools presentation was produced on ETV September 13, 2009 and focuses on what the public and private sector are doing in partnership to look to the future in terms of what an educational campus should be like in the twenty-first century. How can we incorporate the comprehensive needs of each student while also focusing on changing technologies, teaching strategies, curriculum, and more? How can our schools become energy efficient? How do we encourage active community participation within each school? In short...how do we move our public schools into the twenty-first century?

Amanda Burnette, former Principal at J.V. Martin Junior High School and Director of the State Department of Education's Turnaround Schools Initiative co-hosts program with ITV's Bette Jamison. Joining us in studios at ETV are Darryl Rosser, CEO of Sagus International in Chicago; Steven Turckes, Architect with Perkins and Will in Chicago; David Houle, Author and Futurist who is also from Chicago; Diane Sumpter, CEO, DESA International; Ray Rogers, Superintendent of Dillon County School District Two; and Dr. Oscar Lovelace, a Newberry County Physician, as we discuss the campus of the future.

In Our Schools is designed for parents, educators and community partners and focuses on positive educational initiatives in our South Carolina public schools. Please plan to access these programs for your school administrators, teachers, parents, and entire school community. For more information, contact In Our Schools Producer Bette Jamison bjamison@scetv.org.